Workshop on transatlantic social politics (Humanities Research Institute, 16 Sept. 2011)

WELCOME AND COFFEE (from 9.30am)

Panel A: Chronologies and exceptionalisms (10.00-11.30am)

Chair: Daniel Scroop (University of Sheffield)

David Komline (Notre Dame), An American Sonderzeit? Reconsidering Rodgers in Light of Antebellum Atlantic Crossings

Nicola Clayton (Universidad Rey Juan Carlos), The Transatlantic Context of U.S Debates about Emancipation Policy during the 1860s

Andrew Heath (Sheffield), TBC

Panel B: Cultures of print and publishing in transnational perspective (11.45am-1.00pm)

Chair: Andrew Heath (University of Sheffield)

Jean-Louis Marin-Lamellet (Université de Savoie), Acquainting America with work in foreign experiment stations: Benjamin Orange Flower and The Arena (1889-1909)

Nick Witham (University of Nottingham), Transnational Social Politics after the 1960s: Verso Books and the Politics of Central American Solidarity

LUNCH (1.00-2.00)

Panel C: From roots to grasstops: Ideologies of the Right since 1945 (2.00-3.45pm)

Chair: Jonathan Bell (University of Reading)

Jonathan Bronitsky (University of Cambridge), Virtue, morality and faith: The origins of neoconservatism in postwar England

David Sarias Rodriguez (Universidad Rey Juan Carlos), ‘A loyal friend’: Spain and the National Review Conservatives

Manuel Álvarez Tardio (Universidad Rey Juan Carlos), The Spanish Right in the 1960s and the Debate about the End of Ideologies.

Elizabeth Tandy Shermer (Universities of Loyola and Cambridge), Neoliberalism’s Anglo-American Grasstops Origins

COFFEE (3.45-4.00pm)

Panel D: Testing the transatlantic paradigm: Pacific and global crossings (4.00-5.15pm)

Chair: TBC

Daniel Scroop (University of Sheffield), The Manchuria Candidate: The world of William Jennings Bryan

Theresa Ventura (Concordia University), Populism, empire, and reform in the Taft-era Philippines